A FAMOUS THIEF'S CAREER.

The prisoner is one of the best-known thieves that ever operated in Philadelphia. His photograph is in the Rogues' Gallery in this and a half a dozen other cities. As he looked yesterday he is of medium height, well proportioned, and wears a little black moustache. He is about forty years old, and of good address and prepossessing appearance. In New York he is known as John H. Matthews, which is supposed to be his right name. On July 9, 1879, he was arrested in New York while street. The dray contained several bales of cotton, valued at $1,000. The robbery was committed in an ingenious party. A teamster was hired to convey the cotton to a given point. The dray was backed up before a warehouse, the cotton loaded on the wagen, and the driver sent to get the bill of lading. During his absence Mat-thews drove off. On July 15th two cases of Italian cloth, valued at $1,500, were stolen in a similar way. Suspicion was directed, by the character of the theft, to "Jack Sheppard," but the thief proved to be a Montgomery, who murdered Mr. Quigley, pupil and confederate of the master.

He subsequently came to Philadelphia and committed a heavy burglary in a Chestnut-street dry-goods house. He escaped from the city and was arrested in New York. He served a term of imprison-ment for this crime. After gaining his with closed doors. The object, it is underliberty he participated in a burglary in Jer-sey City and took the plunder to New York. He sent for a receiver of stolen goods, and while awaiting his arrival the police made a descent. Sheppard escaped by jumping from a second-story window. The receiver was arrested and sentenced to ten months' imprisonment. In the falt of 187a he was arrested in New York in company with "Red-Nosed Barney" while breaking into a house on Prince street. On November 1, 1879, he was arrested in this city for the cotton rebbery in New York, and arraigued at the Central station. At that time he wore a moustache and imperial. He was asked, "What is your business?" "I have no business now," he coolly responded, "but I think I will go to Congress next year." "Yes, or to the penitentiary," said Magistrate Smith. He was at that time known as Mahony.

He gained the soubriquet of "Jack Sheppard" from the facility he possessed of breaking jail. When a boy he escaped from the Tombs, in New York. At another time, while awaiting examination at the New York police headquarters, he was locked up in a room opposite the detectives office. He induced the doorman to go to the sound of the colonists are in a destitute condition. The project was started by two Jew-baiters, Forster and Quistrop, who are denounced as swindlers by their victums.

Sixty-nine freshmen and fifty sophomores of Lafayette College, in Easton, Pa., had a came rush, at which the faculty and many outsiders were spectators. Goals for each class were placed on the campus 100 yards apart, and the cane was placed midway between the two classes. At a signal both sides rushed for it. The sophomores got the came, and then there was a struggle for its possession. After a few minutes the bornly denied the coarge, and accuser off.

Mrs. Molinsky stubbornly denied the charge, and drove her bornly denied the charge, and drove her accuser off.

When Mrs. Zupish's husband returned from work last evening she told him, with the usual feminine additions, about the day's happenings. Zupish washed himself, donned his clean clothes, ate his supper, started for Molinsky's rooms, where he charged Mr. and Mrs. Molinsky with stealing the keg. Molinsky, fired with anger, denied it. Before Zupish left he threateningly shook his index finger at Molinsky and said that he would have him and his wife arrested, taken to Sunbury, and put in prison. Zupish further said that the laws of America fined a thief $50 and put him in the penitentiary for several years.

Totally ignorant of American laws, and firmly believing that a terrible fate awaited him and his wife within the walls of some penal institution, Molinsky sat down and commenced to cry bitterly. His wife and four children were soon seen in tears. Five minutes afterward Molinsky was a

BOARDING DEPARTMENT

In the Institute Home is found every comfort together with all that pertains to the thorough culture of young ladies; and the extensive ra-tromage, not only from Virginia, but from the en-tire South, attests the excellencies of this depart-ment.

Recognizing the importance of therough pre-paratory study, the principal of this department makes a special effort to train uppils for advance-ment into the lither branches. Pupils are received at the age of cight years. It is important that those proposing to graduate should pass through this thorough course.

SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

The VOCAL DEPARTMENT will be presided over by a celebrated concert singer and fine plants, who has been thoroughly fitted for her work by masters both in America and Europe.

Miss DUSTMAN, who has been the Director of Music at the Institute during the past five years, has enlarged her corps of assistants, and will now be able to receive pands in the city not otherwise connected with the school. Those wishing to fit themselves for teaching should avail themselves of the rare advantages offered by this department.
